

Butler Opera Center Young Artists Program

BOCYAP 2018

BOCYAP is a two-day per week event that will last 3 weeks. The curriculum will include individual voice instruction and classes related to the art of singing, including diction classes, song and aria interpretation, dance and the science behind vocal production. There will also be courses designed to prepare young singers for the application and audition process of undergraduate music schools and professional young artist programs. These courses range from instruction on how to dress, learning skills that are tested on entrance and diagnostic exams and a mock audition with professional and personal feedback. At the end of the program, students will perform in a Solo and Opera Scenes Concert that will exhibit what the student has learned throughout the program. Our program is only 750 dollars.
